OPERATION MANUAL

We at System 3 are continuing in our endeavour to provide you, the games' player, with hours of exciting entertainment through challenging and imaginative gameplay. And the latest product of this endeavour is now at hand ... DOMINATOR.

Dominator is a 'shoot 'em up'. But like all System 3 products, it is designed with a difference. To create a new genre in this type of home computer software.

A four load product, Dominator oozes dynamic arcade-style action. It has breathtaking graphics and animated gaming zones which scroll both horizontally and vertically.

YOU are the "Dominator"; the sole survivor of a 'crack' air fighting team, called upon by fellow mankind to confront and destroy an horrendous threat to Earth's existence. Duty compels you to venture inside and destroy the menace by obliterating its vital organs.

We wish you good luck with our exciting new product and look forward to entertaining you long into the future.

Mark Cate

Shrouded by a veil of secrecy, a latent vacuum in the cosmos was to give rise to the dawning of a new era. The words "death" and "destruction" needed reclassification as the gradual metamorphosis of the ultimate killing machine spelt out the fate of whole galaxies. It had begun to move...

Millions of miles away lies Earth. A planet once wrenched into unwanted confrontation with an amoral and hideous alien race, wanting merely to expand its catalogue of occupied star systems. Men, women and children had fought the unwanted visitors. Only hope fired their existence, fuelled by the bravery, determination and sheer guts of Earth's 'crack' defence fighter pilot team.

"They pulled us through" went the cries on the streets when the 'visitors' were eventually beaten, and beaten well. Compassionate tears flowed for these men as Earth mourned the closest ever annihilation of its population. Bloodstained lives entwined to rebuild with a passion and commitment never seen before.

That was then; this is now. Only one hero pilot remains alive.

He is the sole survivor of a unit that had been allowed to grow old and dwindle back into the earth for which it had fought so proud. A false sense of security infiltrates the star system as no new blood contemplates the rigorous training and commitment of such a future.

This man is bitter. He shuns society for its broken promises. He yearns to lose himself in battle once again, reminiscing friends and times that had been, and relentlessly he polishes his beloved battle weary spacecraft with the broken depiction "DOMINATOR" scrawled along its side. In those earlier years he was known as the 'Dominor', a title he strived to keep whenever his vision was blurred by nostalgia.

Warnings, S.O.S's and stories of total planet absorption had been banded around a terrified solar system for some time now but had been conveniently overlooked by spineless, bureaucratic so-called 'leaders'.

And now it was too late. This was incomprehensible. This was immense. Its vast appetite was closing in on Earth and the putrid smell of partly digested nations hung ominously in space above a society that had refused to believe that its very existence would ever again be in question.

Who could fight?

Who would dare go inside this mutant horror and battle against its bodily defence mechanisms, to obliterate its sustaining organs, to stop its crazed hunger stampede across the universe?

It started an enquiring whisper, mounting into a crescendo of international hope and worship.

Mankind needs you, the 'Dominor' ... You need to fight ...

IT NEEDS TO FEED ...
